Integrated Parking Solutions, Inc. To Receive 2006 Excellence in Technology Award by the City Of New York

BANNOCKBURN, ILLINOIS -- October 24, 2006 -- Integrated Parking Solutions, Inc. (IPS) (OTC: IGPK), said today that they have been notified by the Mayor of New York City, Michael Bloomberg and Commissioner Paul Cosgrave, of the Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications, that Integrated Parking Solutions, Inc. will receive the 2006 Excellence in Technology Award for the Best Application Serving an Agency's Business Needs for the Notice of Violation Administration System (NOVAS). This year's award was for a project with the Department of Sanitation. Last year, IPS received a similar award from New York City for its enforcement project with the New York Police Department (NYPD).

Jerry Scalpone, IPS President said, "This year's award and last years NYPD award confirm that our approach to solving violation notification problems in municipal governments is on the cutting edge of technology. Our technology provides an "all terrain" solution for many different departments in local government. We are very proud of our employees, our customer support systems and our technology."

As part of the activities during the annual New York Technology Forum, an awards presentation will take place: Thursday, November 2, 2006 at 4:30 PM to 5:30 PM at the Brooklyn Marriott, 333 Adams Street. A reception will follow the award ceremony.
