Integrated Parking Solutions, Inc. Announces First Wireless Trial with the City of Cocoa Beach

COCOA BEACH, FLORIDA -- October 31, 2006 -- Integrated Parking Solutions, Inc. (IPS) (OTC: IGPK), the leader in the design, development and implementation of wireless parking technology, announced today that they have started a trial with the City of Cocoa Beach, Florida. The trial is taking place at the high use municipal parking lot along the Atlantic Ocean adjacent to world famous Ron Jon's. The purpose of the trial is to confirm the operational efficiency and the cost savings expected with the use of wireless parking technology. Forty-four IPS "MeterLink" wireless vehicle detection units have been installed.

William P. Dugan, IPS Chairman said, "The City of Cocoa Beach uses Motorola's wireless network and Symbol Technologies handheld ticket writing enforcement devices. IPS has tied those two technologies together using our hardware and software. This first test location has provided us with some very unique technological opportunities."
